To Whom It May Concern;

The Virginia National Guard Youth Program has had the privilege of having Keith Dunn present on Internet Safety at two, 4 hour training events in the state of Virginia. His diverse background and experience is the “wow” factor of his entire program. The teens are drawn into his presentation from the start by simply hearing what he has gone through and what he has accomplished. Although Keith’s experience and knowledge is powerful and eye opening, his way of presenting is highly entertaining and captivating. Keith uses his natural leadership skills to interact with the teens getting them physically and mentally involved. His activities were highly structured and conducive to training materials. Keith’s passion and dedication on his views of keeping young people safe from predators and criminals is clear while he presents and interacts with attendees. As one of the State Youth Coordinators and as a future parent, I was highly impressed with Keith and his ability to connect with teens and help them realize the severity of dangers lurking on the internet. On the administrative side, he is easy to communicate with, understanding, and committed to bringing the best programming, up to date topics, and materials to the state. The Virginia National Guard would love to have Keith Dunn and his organization KDCOP to return and speak on one of his many topics. We highly recommend Keith, his program; energy, knowledge, and presentation to any other state or territory who wants to educate their teens on bullying and internet safety.
